

ESI® Certificate Level Course

'The Many Parts of You'®

Understanding the Puzzle of Your Behaviour

Are you satisfied with your performance?

Chances are, you're not. Maybe you want to be thinner, stronger, healthier, smarter, wealthier, more disciplined, buy a nicer home, be a better mum, dad, partner, etc. From a business perspective, maybe you want to be more creative, innovative, productive, efficient, profitable, etc.

Because you're not quite satisfied (and probably in more than one area) you're probably pushing yourself hard to get better. You talk about it, say you will, put your mind to it, write it down and post it on the computer screen ...

And then don't!

So why, when there is a part of you that knows exactly what to do and how to do it, in order to achieve success?

The answer is that there are other parts of you that simply 'get in the way'.

How can you identify supportive parts and place them into active roles, so that the inhibiting parts stay non active? The answer is ESI®.

ESI® has been developed from Ego State Personality Theory which comes from the work of Freud and Federn, and is based on the premise that a personality is composed of separate parts, rather than being a homogenous whole. These parts (which everyone has) are called states. The state that is conscious and overt at any time is referred to as the 'executive state'.

ESI® allows you to recognise the executive states from which you behave, and will uncover inhibiting states that are sometimes executive, thus preventing you from achieving your goals at times.

ESI® is new, unique to every individual and works to create an understanding of the puzzle of our behaviour.

YOUR FACILITATOR: Jan Sky

Jan is the author of The Many Parts of You. She is an author, coach, corporate trainer and creator of ESI®. She is passionate about developing people to their full potential and will teach you how to find and understand the many parts that make up who you are.
